FROM THE CANTOR

In preparing for a brief out-of-town trip recently, I was looking over the online reviews of one hotel that was very close to my destination. It was interesting. About half the reviewers said it was a super deal -- great location, great price, with lots of quaint character. On the other hand there was the other half that gave it very low grades, writing that the place was awful, with horrible service, a depressing environment, and lacking in the basic amenities. One reviewer wrote, "I would never set foot there again!"

I find it fascinating how folks can be so diametrically opposed. One would hardly believe it was the exact same hotel they were reviewing during the same period of time!

Part of the reason for such divergence of views has to do with expectations. If you are expecting five star luxury and amenities in your lodging and receive merely three star treatment, you might be terribly disappointed. Alternatively, if your expectations are low, you might be inclined to offer a rave review of the establishment.

But surely, it is not just a matter of expectations. As important, if not more so, are perceptions. The simple truth is that we all see things differently, in every aspect of life. We all know the saying, "Two Jews, three opinions." I believe this is a universal phenomenon that cuts across all religious and ethnic groups. (OK, we might be just a little more combatively opinionated!)

Of course, such divergence of opinion is not limited to hotel selection. I, like many, enjoy reading opinion pieces on a wide range of subjects, and I am always keenly interested in how other readers respond. And on virtually every issue there is sharp disagreement. What especially stands out in my mind is how the discourse all too often devolves into nasty personal attacks. The prevailing view sadly seems to be: Why limit yourself to attacking the other's argument when you can go after the person as well? Now debate, even when passionate, on the substance of issues is a good thing. Arguing in defense of one's point of view can be constructive, as long as it is, as our Sages have taught, lishma, that is, respectful, for the sake of truth and for the sake of arriving at the correct policy. Gratuitous name-calling or disparagement is ugly and not consistent with our values.

To be sure, there are times when it is not enough to engage in polite debate. When someone wants to slit your throat because you happen to have a different set of religious beliefs, then the answer is not deferential discussion to understand the other's point of view!

With respect to the hotel in question, I decided at the time to look for other lodging. The location may have indeed been ideal and the price very reasonable, but the very popular downstairs eatery acclaimed for its wide selection of "over 500 different beers from around the world" was said to be open and noisy until the wee hours of the morning -- not a recipe for a quiet and restful night's sleep and so not a good deal at any price....

B'shalom,

Cantor Steven Stern

FROM THE CO-PRESIDENTS

Spring has sprung and TBOBT is going green!

Starting next month, if you have email you will receive the bulletin via your email address.

No waiting at the mailbox and we will support the environment at the same time. Please call the temple office and provide us with your email address.

If you live nearby, you can pickup the bulletin at your earliest convenience. In addition to helping the environment, the temple will save time and postage.

On another topic...this month I happened to review the bulletin before writing my article.

Jayne's article is very moving and the Cantor always has something meaningful to share.

Please take note of the proposed slate of officers and the budget for next year. The Board is working very hard to raise funds and cut expenses. Unfortunately, you will see that we are operating at a loss.

It is extremely important that each and every temple member supports the concert on June 4th, not just by purchasing tickets, but by purchasing sponsorships.

I encourage you to make this the best fundraising event of the year!

We need your support at TBOBT at services, fundraisers, committees and on the Board.

I say it every month, I mean it every day.

Wendy Mandelbaum

CONGREGATION MEETING MONDAY, MAY 11 AT 7:30 PM

THE SLATE OF OFFICERS FOR 2015-2016 FISCAL YEAR WILL BE VOTED ON.

TBOBT would like to thank Investors Bank Foundation for their grant to assist us in the repair of our parking lot.

MORNING MINYAN UPDATE

Temple Beth O'r Beth Torah has made a change to its morning minyan schedule in order to provide daily services for morning prayers, yahrzeits and mourners.

TBOBT will continue to alternate weekday minyans each month with our neighbor, Temple Beth-El Mekor Chayim in Cranford.

TBOBT has minyan the odd months of the year and TBEMC the even months of the year.

Both shuls will now join Congregation Beth Israel, Scotch Plains on Thursdays for services and Torah reading at 7:00 a.m. until further notice.

Please support your fellow congregants and community by attending services whenever you can. We need and appreciate your participation.

Please contact the temple office if you have any questions.

Combined Morning Minyan

In May minyan will be held in Clark

Monday – 6:50 am; Tuesday, Wed., & Friday – 7:00 am;
Thursday at Beth Israel in Scotch Plains at 7:00 am;
Sundays & Holidays in Clark - 9:00 am.
Evening services are held every day at 7:30 pm in Cranford.

SISTERHOOD PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

After a long winter, spring has finally made its presence felt! In a few days on Sunday, May 3 is Women's League Spring Conference. This year it is being held in Highland Park. A number of our members will be attending. It is always a great learning experience and a lot of fun.

Then the event all of us ladies look forward to happens this year on Thursday, May 28th. It is the annual Donor Dinner. Make sure if you have not done so yet, to get your reservation in to Sebley Hausler very soon. It is always a great evening of entertainment, food and socializing. Don't miss this special treat created by Sebley!

See you at Donor!!

Joleen Fridson

SISTERHOOD DONOR DINNER THURSDAY, MAY 28, AT 6 PM

JUDAICA SHOP NEWS

The Sisterhood Board has decided that the gift shop should no longer accept used items to sell, even if they are in good condition. So thanks for thinking of us, but no thanks! Kindly note that I plan to serve as gift shop chairman for one more year. I'm seeking a co-chairman for next year to work with me and take over in the summer of 2016. Please give it some thought and call or email me to say "Yes!" This job is a lot of fun and you can make your own hours. It's like having your own little shop! ### TBO-BT Men's Club SHOMREI HA'ARETZ/ STEWARDS OF THE LAND

Protect vs Use: Jewish Footprints on the Land

In the Torah portion Shemini, the Jewish people are given the laws concerning fish consumption. Leviticus 11:9-12 explains that all creatures in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers with both fins and scales are acceptable (kosher).

The first time that G-d speaks to any of the living creatures, the speech is directed at the fish. Genesis 1:22 relates, "And G-d blessed them saying: 'Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas'..." The Torah uses fish to connote fertility and abundance.

In today's world, however, fish could not be used as a symbol of fertility and abundance.

The U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, National Marine Fisheries Service report estimated that more than three-quarters of the world's marine fish stocks are currently being fished at their maximum or have already been overfished beyond their maximum and are now in decline. This includes cod from the Gulf of Maine, Alaska pollock, Atlantic herring, Chilean Sea Bass, and blue fin tuna, to name a few. Are we acting in an unholy manner when we eat fish that are harvested from unsustainable fisheries?

The Monterey Bay Aquarium provides information on good eco-choices for eating seafood. An example is wild-caught Alaskan salmon, eco-certified by the Marine Stewardship Council. Other kosher fish species receiving either a "best" or "good" rating include: tilapia farmed in either the U.S. or Central America, farmed U.S. Atlantic salmon, yellow fin tuna caught in the U.S. by either troll or pole, and wild-caught lingcod from either the U.S. or Canada.

The opportunity before us is to buy fish sustainably, fulfilling the divine mandate for human stewardship of G-d's planet – to use it and to protect it.

Suggested Actions:

Research the fish that you buy to see if it is sustainable.

Make a commitment to buy sustainable fish.

Encourage your Congressional representatives to support Marine conservation measures.

"Coming Home"

By Jane Heidelberger

My mother always told me that Jews come together in celebration and sorrow. I never quite understood that until she passed away and I returned to Temple Beth O'r/Beth Torah in mourning. The first Friday night after getting up from sitting Shiva, I entered the Sanctuary still "shell-shocked" from losing my mom so suddenly. I was immediately surrounded by some of my TBO "family" so I would not be alone. With their support, I slowly started to feel like myself. I never sat alone during Friday night and Saturday morning services, and soon found myself totally immersed in the service. I think I learned more in the 11 months that I came every Shabbat than I did when I was younger and attending Hebrew School (it was a different shul).

Now that my mourning period is over, I still find myself attending services; surrounded by my "family", enjoying many lively and informative discussions as well as a delicious lunch after services.

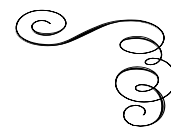

From the first day I became a member of Temple Beth O'r/Beth Torah, I have never felt alone even though I attend services by myself. I have always been welcomed with open arms. That sense of welcome is one of the many aspects of the Temple that I love.

I have shared tears and laughter with my TBO family, and every service, every program that I attend, I feel like I am coming home; and I am content.
