FROM THE CANTOR

I tuned in to 60 Minutes last week and was surprised to see an old professor of mine profiled by the journalist Anderson Cooper. He was an MIT trained biologist so I might have thought that he had made some new discovery in the laboratory. It turns out he had been working all these years in the laboratory of everyday living, and had become known for doing research and teaching on the subject of how to properly do the most basic things in life – like sitting, walking, eating, or taking a shower. His field is referred to as mindfulness, and he is credited with its gaining traction as a subject of scientific inquiry and for exploring its benefits for those experiencing difficulties with the physical and emotional challenges of life.

The professor's name is Jon Kabat-Zinn and in the 60 Minutes segment he explained mindfulness as the non-judgmental, purposeful awareness of what is at any given moment -- one's thoughts, one's physical sensations, and one's surroundings. It's about the ability to focus on the present when the mind would rather veer off to the regrets of the past or the worries about the future.

I have always thought of Judaism in that same present-oriented way. While we should certainly plan for the future, and revisit the past to learn its lessons, we are always being guided to the present with every bracha that we are instructed to make. And since our Sages have set 100 as the minimum number of blessings for each and every day, that's a lot of present moment awareness or kavanah! Whether it's awakening in the morning with the gratitude of the Modeh Ani prayer, or reciting Hamotzi before partaking of bread, it is all about appreciation for the gifts of the moment.

Professor Kabat-Zinn founded a clinic at the University of Massachusetts where he pioneered much of the research into the field of mindfulness based stress reduction. In his clinic and on his retreats, as was shown on the broadcast, he begins by requiring that everyone surrender all their technological gadgets — phones, tablets and all. Disconnecting temporarily from our omnipresent technological tools is a prerequisite for connecting to some inner peace. Next is to find a focus for our concentration — Kabat-Zinn and others suggest the breath, to "ride on the waves of the inhalations and exhalations" which he maintains can take us away from both the troubles of the world and those of our mind's own making.

Since we are beginning the secular New Year, and as I am not averse to making resolutions in January (as sort of booster shots for the work of the High Holidays), I hereby resolve to attempt the following: First, to refrain from checking my email more than once every half hour. I know that won't be easy, but I am really committed to trying. And secondly, I will try to be ever more mindful of the magnificence of every present moment, to better ride on the waves of the nishmat chayim, the breath of life. These are really very simple goals, but I know they will not be easy to fulfill. But I am committed to give it my best, and I intend to begin right now – just after, that is, I take a second to see who's emailing me at 1 am on this chilly December night....

B'Shalom,

Cantor Steven Stern

HAVDALAH & MUCH MORE! Saturday, January 10

Join us as we usher out the Sabbath with a Havdalah candle lighting at 7 pm followed by a concert featuring

The Beth El Tefillah Band

and a capping off of the evening with the film Hava Nagila

The song Hava Nagila is to music what the bagel is to food - a Jewish staple that has transcended its origins and become a worldwide hit. Bob Dylan sang it, and Elvis, too! Follow the infectious party song on its fascinating journey from the shtetls of Eastern Europe to the cul-de-sacs of America in this hilarious and surprisingly deep film.

Light refreshments will be served.

THE CHOREOGRAPHY OF THE SHABBAT SERVICE

"WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?"

Wednesdays, January 28 & February 4at 8 pm

Have you ever wondered what's going on at a Shabbat service? When do I stand and when do I sit? What do the prayers really mean? Who gets called to the Torah? These and any other questions you may have will be answered at these informative and clarifying sessions for both beginners and regular daveners led by Cantor Steven Stern.

FROM THE CO-PRESIDENTS

Those who authored the pessimistic Pew report about the state of Jewish life in the United States should have been at TBOBT on the Shabbat of December 19/20, 2014.

We hosted about 80 members from the Hagalil Region of United Synagogue Youth. They were on their way to the National Convention in Atlanta, Georgia.

The USYers conducted most of Friday evening and Shabbat services including the regular davening, Torah reading, Haftarah chanting, and offered messages and divrei Torah talks.

The congregation of USYers were enthusiastic daveners, dancing and singing during services in a display of unbounded Jewish enthusiasm.

What impressed me was the comfort level of their participation in services. For these young Jews, this wasn't a one-shot deal for this occasion. While school life, social life, sports, etc. are part of their life, they have committed themselves to their Judaism. Our hope is that their commitment deepens and matures as they go on in life.

A highlight of Friday night's service was Cantor Stern inviting up our current Clark USY chapter president Steven Langer, and former president Ilana Dorsch to lead the Kiddush, assisted by our Hebrew School students Alina and Jaden Antonucci.

With the memory of our USYers in services, dancing, singing socializing, being the teenagers they are, still ringing in my ears, I say Judaism seems to be alive and well—so there, Pew Report!

Our kudos to the chaperones and teachers accompanying the group (many ex USYers themselves).

And our thanks and admiration to Dassy Mark who lovingly shepherds our young people to become Jewish adults who love and practice their Judaism. And a special yasher koach to Barbara James for her tremendous devotion to our youth and without whom this pre-convention Shabbat at TBOBT could not have taken place.

My thanks to Wendy & Howard for allowing me to prepare this month's message.

SISTERHOOD PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Can you believe 2015 is now here? Have you made some New Year's resolutions? Well, if you want to fulfill one, you must support one of Women's League initiatives. Go buy gifts for Purim or Passover by going to the website:

fairtradejudaica.org. Here you can purchase items made by women in cooperatives from all over the world. You are assured they are made by adults and not children. This allows children to attend school instead of working in the fields or factories. On a personal note, many of you have noticed the pretty kippot I have been wearing. I bought it this summer at convention from Fair Trade. Go check out their website!

January is a fun month for Sisterhood. With no holidays and some cold weather we have a popular annual event. You're guaranteed to have lots of laughs! Once again Esther Schlesinger will be graciously hosting at her home on Wednesday, January 14. We will have dinner at 6:30pm and then play a board game. No experience needed! The cost is $15. Call Esther by January 9 to make your reservation. See you at Game Night.

TBO-BT MEN'S CLUB WORLD WIDE WRAP XV SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 1

Super Bowl Sunday is more than just a day to kick back with your friends, load up on potato chips, and watch the Big Game (and about a thousand commercials). It's also the day on which TBO-BT MEN'S CLUB will join over 240 Men's Clubs around the world to teach the mitzvah of Tefillin by participating in the World Wide Wrap.

All men and women are invited. Michael Goldstein will teach the technique. Make reservations with the temple office by January 29st for instructions. Instruction is at 8:45am and Minyan is at 9:00am. We will have a nice breakfast.

Come wrap with us on Sunday, February 1!

TBO-BT Men's Club SHOMREI HA'ARETZ/ STEWARDS OF THE LAND

Shmittah Year: Humans in Balance with Earth Tu B'Shevat 5775 February 4, 2015

Shmittah, literally translated as the 'year of release,' and more widely known as the Sabbatical Year, is a biblical Jewish tradition, which, once every seven years, simultaneously re-adjusted agriculture and commerce to ensure an equitable, just and healthy society. The year of Shmittah was a time when agricultural lands were collectively left fallow. The Earth (land, air, water) is not merely some resource to be used and abused. If we want to live on the land, it is our responsibility to let it rest and not destroy the biological productivity with trash dumps, slag heaps, chemical waste ponds and sewage.

Tu B'Shavat is the Jewish New Year of the trees. Trees are a metaphor for nature and the environment. The celebration and blessings give thanks for the sustenance and material provided to humans. The combination of Shmittah and Tu B'Shevat should encourage us to make the effort to be stewards of the land.

Conserve the forests by reusing paper (print on both sides) and cardboard boxes before recycling. Purchase goods with 80%+ consumer recycled material.

Reduce food waste, purchase and cook only what your family can eat before it spoils and compost the vegetable waste. Share the food you cannot use.

Plan to use more sustainable lawn & landscape care practices such as using native plants, water conservation and avoiding chemical fertilizers and pesticides.

School Days

Along with many activities for the celebration of Hanukkah, our students are progressing nicely with their Hebrew language studies, the study of Hebrew prayers, as well as the understanding of basic concepts of our Jewish religion.

Our outdoor Menorah Lighting was held on Thursday, December 18th. After the lighting, everyone enjoyed feasting on latkes and sufganiyot. On Sunday, December 21, our Hebrew School, Yaldeinu and K'Ton students and their parents got together to make latkes.

Our next K'Ton class will meet on January 11.
